Her Clothes Burn.

New Brunswick, Oct. 10.—Miss Belle Matthews of Jamesburg stuck at her switchboard this morning, although flames from a fire in the big drygoods store of L. T. Bennett & Sons on Rail-road avenue, Jamesburg, scorched her clothing. She coolly called on surrounding towns to send aid. The fire was in the most congested section of the town.

The Jamesburg telephone exchange is located on the second floor over the Bennett store. Miss Matthews had just finished her task of getting aid when the whole lower floor of the building burst into flames. Then, with her clothing ablaze, she made her way to the street.

Two nouses besides the Bennett store supremacy, the Superbas rose to heights of power that had so often lifted them water. The damage is estimated at $20. out of periods of adversity during their 000. Mise Matthews is the heroine
